

CPA is often asked if departments can separate out parts of their repertoire in order to gain accreditation.

CPA accredits the whole service and not parts of it. It has been agreed that separation of the service will only be acceptable if it can be demonstrated that there is true separation and the repertoire forms a separate department. There must be adequate professional direction and separate managerial responsibility.